After a thorough vetting, Jeff McManus, Chairman of the Bexar County Republican Party, announced an endorsement of local grass-roots activist, Ashton Bulman, for a seat on the City Council of Universal City.

"I think voters in Universal City will agree that Ashton Bulman is the most exciting, new, young conservative leader to emerge from the North East part of Bexar County in many years. Ashton is a wife, mother of three, a homeschool educator and an experienced independent businesswoman and photographer. A relentless and energetic activist, Ashton regularly addresses City Council on behalf of the taxpayers. She is also a tireless campaigner who has already spoken, one-on-one, with over 400 Universal City voters on the campaign trail and she has vowed to bring their issues and concerns to the forefront."

Chairman McManus has worked hard to increase the participation of Republican candidates in non-partisan city council races, not only in San Antonio, but throughout all the municipalities of Bexar County. The Chairman strongly encourages all Republican voters to come out and vote for candidates, such as Ashton Bulman, who are committed to lower taxes, greater scrutiny in spending and allocation of local sales and venue taxes, and who support local law enforcement.

Mrs. Bulman expressed her appreciation for the endorsement, saying: "I am grateful for the endorsement of Chairman McManus and the Republican Party of Bexar County in my quest for a seat on the Universal City, City Council. If elected, I'm committed to fight for my fellow Universal City residents on all the issues that matters to them. Be it re-looking at the venue tax currently going to the golf course; providing greater oversight of spending; ensuring infrastructure, such as our roads receive higher priority; and that our first responders have all the resources they need to protect us. I will always put the people first and never forget that the purpose of government is to serve the people."

Ashton Bulman has lived and been a homeowner in Universal City for the past six years - previously in Coronado and currently in the Rose Garden neighborhood. She has always been active in the community, be it as a volunteer, participating in local events and engaging in local politics. She is a passionate advocate for her city and the success of locally owned businesses."
